Executive Summary

After experiencing multiple fraudulent attempts, Lambda Construction partnered with 7tech to strengthen confidence in its cybersecurity. With its network actively monitored and protected, leadership gained peace of mind and could stay focused on running jobs and growing the business instead of worrying about network security.

About the Client

Lambda Construction is a New Braunfels, Texas-based construction contractor led by Owner Conor Shullanberger. The company focuses on delivering quality construction work while managing projects efficiently and profitably. Its leadership is dedicated to running jobs and growing the business, making reliable protection of its systems, network, and company information an important priority.

The Challenge

After dealing with multiple fraudulent attempts, Lambda Construction had serious concerns about protecting its systems, network, and company information. Leadership wanted confidence that its data was secure without having to spend time worrying about cybersecurity.

- Multiple fraudulent attempts made the protection of Lambda Construction's systems and company information a serious concern.
- Leadership wanted greater confidence that the network was being actively monitored and protected.
- Ongoing concern about network security created stress and competed with the time and attention needed to run jobs and grow a profitable construction company.

They've proven to be an affordable, reliable cybersecurity partner who truly has our back. Having them as part of our team allows us to stay focused on running jobs and growing a profitable construction company, instead of stressing about network security.

Conor Shullanberger, Lambda Construction

The Solution

Lambda Construction selected 7tech after the company came highly recommended. 7tech now serves as an affordable, reliable cybersecurity partner and an extension of Lambda's team. The engagement centers on actively monitoring and protecting the company's network, systems, data, and business information. Instead of leaving Lambda to manage network security concerns alone, 7tech provides ongoing cybersecurity oversight and a trusted resource for protecting its technology environment. Shullanberger describes 7tech as a partner that truly has the company's back.

The Results

Working with 7tech gave Lambda Construction greater confidence in its cybersecurity and a strong sense of relief. Knowing the network is actively monitored and protected reduced the uncertainty leadership had previously felt about the safety of company information. Conor Shullanberger describes 7tech as an affordable, reliable partner that has the company's back. Most importantly, the partnership allows him to focus on running jobs and growing a profitable construction company instead of stressing about network security.

Key Takeaways

Lambda Construction gained greater peace of mind by working with a cybersecurity partner it trusts. Active monitoring and protection helped reduce leadership's uncertainty, allowing the company to focus more fully on jobs, operations, and growth.

Services Provided

7tech provided managed cybersecurity support centered on active network monitoring and protection. The partnership gave Lambda Construction a trusted resource for cybersecurity, helping leadership feel more confident about the security of company information and stay focused on business operations.

Final Thoughts

For Lambda Construction, the value of managed cybersecurity is confidence. After facing multiple fraudulent attempts, the company wanted a trusted partner to help protect its network and information. With 7tech, leadership gained peace of mind and more freedom to focus on running jobs and growing the business.
